A CELEBRATION OF WELLINGTON CRICKET

Past, Present and Future

supporting the

RUTH STRAUSS
FOUNDATION

POWERS VOLT

We are supporting

On Friday 28th February 2020, Wellington College Cricket Club and the Old Wellingtonian Cricket Club are hosting a dinner in the Long Room at Lord’s in celebration of Wellington Cricket. And we are both delighted and privileged that the evening is being held in support of the Ruth Strauss Foundation.

The Wellington Cricket community is very special, and this dinner brings together all its parts in the most evocative four walls in world cricket, the Long Room at Lord’s. This includes, between England tours, our most recent international and county cricketers, Tom, Sam and Ben Curran.

This year Ruth and Andrew Strauss’ eldest son joined Wellington College, and so the Ruth Strauss Foundation has a very personal connection to the school and its wider community. This wonderful charity not only funds research into rare lung cancers, but also provides emotional, psychological and wellbeing support to patients and their families going through a similar experience.

We are immensely grateful to our very generous sponsors tonight, Powervault, leaders in the field of smart energy storage, a company with close links to Wellington as you will see in this brochure.

And a heartfelt thank you to those who have made very generous donations to the Foundation even though they are unable to attend, in particular Tim Bunting who has given so much in so many ways to Wellington cricket over the years. Our very grateful thanks too to all those who have so kindly given some amazing auction prizes, and especially to Peter Mallinson and to The Berkshire Golf Club.

Wellington Cricket is flourishing, enjoying possibly the most successful period in its history. College is regularly producing male and female cricketers of the highest quality, many today going on to play representative cricket at first class level and of course beyond. Having OW cricketers playing Ashes and World Cup cricket in this last year are very proud successes.

At school level, this means strong and consistent performances by the XI including a recent win in the Cowdrey Cup, biennial overseas tours, and a flourishing of boys and girls cricket across all age groups. The Old Wellingtonian Cricket Club retains one of the healthiest public school fixture lists, and regularly features in the closing stages of the Cricketer Cup, winning most recently in 2017.

This summer’s opening of the magnificent bespoke cricket facility within the Robin Dyer Centre complements the continued growth of girls and women’s cricket both at College and within the OWCC, and 2020 welcomes the first combined WCCC/OWCC women’s fixture against the MCC.

Although recent years on Turf have heralded the launch of international cricketers, there are a host of other OWs who have played and are playing first class cricket in both the men’s and women’s games, as well as many more who enjoy cricket at Minor County, University, and club levels.

Wellington Cricket is far greater than a few highlights: it is the sum of its parts, and tonight we welcome all of you who have contributed so much to Wellington cricket, to join us in celebrating its past with pride, and both its present and future with justified excitement.

Fighting the lung cancers you don’t hear about. Supporting the suffering you don’t see.

“In December 2017, Ruth was diagnosed with a rare form of lung cancer which affects those who have never smoked. Little over a year later, she lost her life to the disease.

Throughout the course of her treatment, Ruth remained incredibly positive and determined to ensure that something positive came from her ordeal. Thus, the idea of starting a Foundation to help those diagnosed with similar forms of lung cancer and their families was born.

POWervault

Powervault are delighted to sponsor this celebration of Wellington Cricket in aid of the Ruth Strauss Foundation. Powervault's non-executive chairman, Mark Ansell MA (Cantab), CEng, MIMechE, MBA, DL is an OW (Lynedoch 1976-1980) and cricket aficionado.

After representing the Yearlings 1st XI as a left arm leg spinner, his school cricket career was distinctly underwhelming, however his love of cricket endured and he has been chairman of North Devon Cricket Club since 2012 (home club of the Overton twins) and has just returned from South Africa where he has been Manager of the Devon Boys Development Tour (now in its 20th year).

Climate change is real, and if there is to be a long term future for any let alone Wellington cricket, we urgently need to more effectively harness the power of renewable energy on the journey to a zero carbon future. Home energy storage is part of the solution and Powervault is the British company pioneering this.

Mark Ansell MA
Powervault's non-executive chairman

Powervault user interface

Powervault's energy storage system helps homeowners to reduce their energy consumption by storing low cost renewable electricity in their homes. Carbon emission reduction is moving us to an era where most electricity will be generated by wind and solar energy. This energy is often generated when it is not needed, so it must either be stored or wasted. Clean electricity will also be used to power electric vehicles and heat our homes. These factors create the opportunity for home energy storage. Our vision is to become as common place as a washing machine or dishwasher.

Powervault was founded as a startup business in 2012 and is at an exciting phase in its growth having recently secured significant partnerships in the electricity sector with EDF Energy among others. Several businesses in the sector have recently been sold for more than £100m including electric vehicle charging company Podpoint (sold to EDF) and rival battery player, Sonnen (sold to Shell) underlining the opportunity for investors. The company is currently seeking to raise EIS approved equity investment from High Net Worth and angel investors to capitalise on the opportunity and take the business to break even, profitability and an exit for investors.

Mark, Joe and the Powervault team welcome contact with anyone interested in owning a part of this exciting company or one of its products!
